Larkspur Nonprofit Schurig Center for Brain Injury Recovery Adds New Board Member Jay Hancher

(Larkspur, CA) Schurig Center for Brain Injury Recovery (“Schurig Center”) is pleased to announce that Jay Hancher, resident of San Rafael, has joined its Board of Directors.

Mr. Hancher, a corporate finance professional, received his BA from UC Davis and MBA from University of San Francisco. Mr. Hancher is a Bay Area native and has been an active community member over the years, volunteering for numerous local non-profit organizations in a variety of capacities. Mr. Hancher is excited to apply his talents as an ambassador for Schurig Center to support the organization’s financial health and marketing efforts as well as acting as an advocate for brain injury survivors and their families.

“We are very pleased to welcome Jay to our Board of Directors. Living in Marin with his family, Jay believes in Schurig Center for Brain Injury Recovery’s value to our local community. His professional experience and athletic interests will increase the organization’s strength and expand our outreach,” shared Schurig Center’s Board President Kim Strub.

About Schurig Center for Brain Injury Recovery

Founded in 1985, Schurig Center for Brain Injury Recovery is a nonprofit offering an array of services designed specifically to help brain injury, concussion, and stroke survivors and their families live fully, meaningfully, and happily. We pick up where the healthcare system leaves off by providing a place where survivors and caregivers can gather for continued rehabilitation, education, and support from brain injury experts and others who understand. Brain injury is a pause button. Schurig Center helps Bay Area survivors and their families press ‘play’ again. (SchurigCenter.org)
